The average masculine mind (if any) may react negatively to this between-us-girls stuff even though it may recognize Miss McCarthy's brilliantly diabolical prose style. Male or female, a reader becomes involved with this cast of characters, because Mary McCarthy is that kind of dark writing genius, but in my case I was glad to leave the company — whether romantic virgin or lesbian — once the performance was over.

Already "The Group" is the conversation piece novel of the early fall season. To me, it remains Restoration Comedy plus considerable 20th Century tragedy produced by one of the most self-possessed American ladies of our age.

DON'T LET YOUR PEACHES SHIVER

A hot peach is a golden, luscious thing, glowing with flavor. So next time you're serving chicken, broil it on Reynold's Wrap and add cling peaches the last ten minutes of broiling. Do make sure they're canned cling peaches: the only ones which keep their shape and golden color when they're heated.
